

Christine M. McEvoy is recently retired from serving as a Justice of the Massachusetts Superior Court, having been appointed in 1994. Previously, she served as the First Justice of the Concord Division of the District Court, having been appointed to that court in 1989. She sat primarily in criminal sessions in Suffolk Superior Court where she has tried numerous high profile homicide and gang-related cases and in Middlesex Superior Court in civil trial and motion sessions.

Justice McEvoy is presently an Adjunct Faculty member at Boston College Law School, having taught there for 30 years. Her teaching experience includes Criminal Law, Criminal Procedure, Evidence and Trial Practice. She is a board member of the Flaschner Judicial Institute and has chaired their Evidence Program for many years. She has also chaired the Search and Seizure program for the Massachusetts Judicial Institute. She has lectured for Kaplan Bar Review on Massachusetts Criminal Law and Procedure. She is co-author of Grasso & McEvoy, Suppression Matters Under Massachusetts Law, LexisNexis Publications (2017 Edition), and co-author of Russell & McEvoy, Hearsay, MCLE, 2006. She has contributed chapters to various MCLE publications, including Massachusetts Superior Court Criminal Practice, A Practical Guide to Introducing Evidence, and has lectured extensively on search and seizure, homicide, criminal law and evidence at numerous judicial and legal forums. In her capacity as Chair of the Rule of Law for the Massachusetts Judges Conference, Justice McEvoy has lectured in China and Russia. She has also lectured in Uzbekistan and Cuba and directed programs for foreign judges and students in the United States.

Justice McEvoy graduated from Regis College, A.B., and from Suffolk University Law School, J.D., cum laude, serving as a member of the Suffolk Law Review. Upon graduation, she served as a Law Clerk to the Justices of the Superior Court, and thereafter as an Assistant District Attorney for Middlesex County for twelve years, trying capital cases and major felonies.
